- Visit x-rated website intentionally

Child

- Female
- LGBTQ
- Out of school
- Disabilities

- Mental health problems
- History of abuse

Parent

- Absent/unavailable
- Parents in conflict
- Pedophilia/Hebephilia
- Poor supervision
- Little knowledge of OSCE
- Poverty

POTENTIAL INDICATORS OF ONLINE EXPLOITATION

- Spends more and more time on Internet
- Becomes secretive about use of technology
- Becomes more possessive of phone, anxious if someone wants to look at it
- Agitated when answering phone, needs privacy for calls
- Vague talk of “new friend” online
- Starts leaving home for periods, without explanation (or vague)

POTENTIAL INDICATORS OF ONLINE EXPLOITATION

- Angry or withdrawn when online
- Lots of new contacts or followers
- Academic decline
- Mental health issues
- Pulling away from family/friends

WE KNOW THE IMPACT OF TRAUMA...

Views of the world and other people

Views of self

What child/family expects of you

Child/parent behaviors

Way child/family interprets your words/actions

Things child/parent says

Attitudes toward you

ADDITIONAL CONSIDERATIONS

But the patient/family response to trauma is only one side of the equation...

- What does our own trauma history bring to the situation?
- What about our cultural biases?

SO, HOW DO YOU RESPOND TO THESE BEHAVIORS?

- Recognize the reason for the behavior
- Respond:
 - Ensure safety
 - Listen empathically
 - Offer support
 - Meet child 'where they are'
 - Monitor for signs of distress

TRAUMA-INFORMED APPROACH

- Respect
 - Explanations
 - Consent
 - Transparency
 - Review limits of confidentiality early on

- Strength-based approach
 - Engage patient in evaluation and care
 - Identify strengths, resilience
 - Allow control; offer choices

PREVENTION STRATEGIES

- Promote increased communication between parents/kids
- Prevention programs for children:
 - Warn against sending sexual images
 - Practice refusal skills (role plays using scripts children believe are helpful)
 - Healthy relationships
 - Target offenders: warn of legal consequences
 - Teach peers to protect and intervene, to support, not judge victims, to discourage offenders

TELL CHILDREN ABOUT GROOMING TECHNIQUES

- A groomer may do any of these things:
 - Send lots of messages, often using different platforms
 - Ask you to keep the friendship ‘secret’
 - Ask questions about who has access to your computer, phone, etc.
 - Talk about sexual things (maybe make comments about your body or your sexual experience)
 - Ask you to send sexual images or do sexual things

ONLINE SAFETY: MORE TIPS

- Use strict privacy settings in apps and on websites
 - Turn off 'location sharing'
 - Opt out of ability for app or website to post to social media sites (Facebook) on your behalf
- Take an interest in child's online behavior: ask what they like, what they share between friends.

ONLINE SAFETY: MORE TIPS

- Begin good online citizenship training early!
 - Don't give out name, address, birthdate, jersey number, email, passwords, etc.
 - Think before you post: what will be the impact of my post?
 - Texts and photos can be forwarded!
 - Respect others; disagree politely
 - “Be an upstander”: stand up for someone you see is being bullied, victimized
 - Report bad behavior to parents or other trusted adult
 - Never send a photo to a person you've only met online,
 - Do not arrange to meet an online 'friend' alone
 - Understand the distinction between face-to-face friends and 'online friends'
 - Question whether information they get online is actually true

CONCLUSIONS

- Many risk factors for OCSE exist at individual, family, community and societal levels
- Certain behaviors may be indicators of OCSE
- A victim-centred, trauma-informed approach helps build trust with survivors
- Social service workforce representatives play an important role in preventing and responding to online child sexual exploitation
